David Estes

Words in proximity to one another take on another meaning. What you hear at a given moment is a refraction of what's gone before or after. At the same time, I try to dress in a way that is just slightly off, so the spectator, if he notices, will feel slightly bemused but not excluded, remembering his own imperfect mode of dress.

John Ashbery

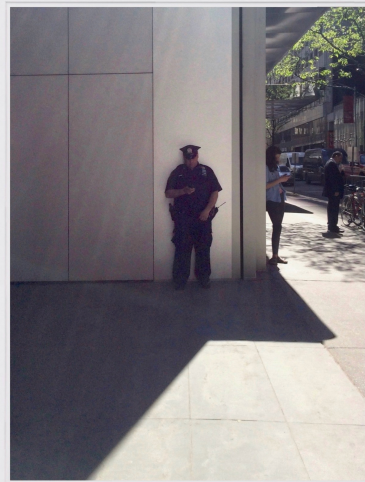

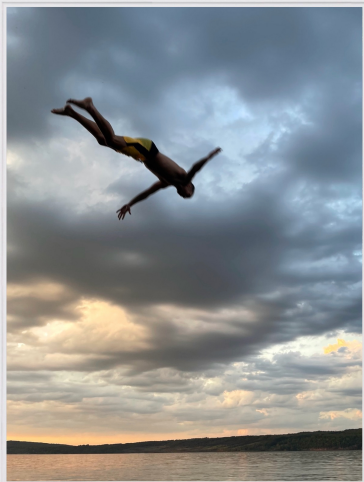

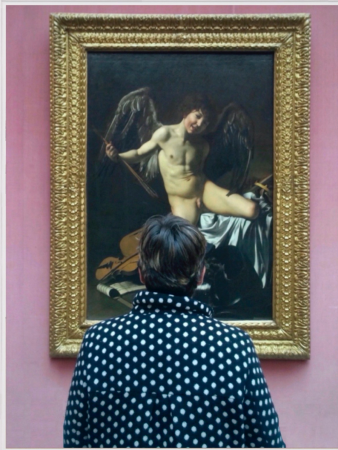

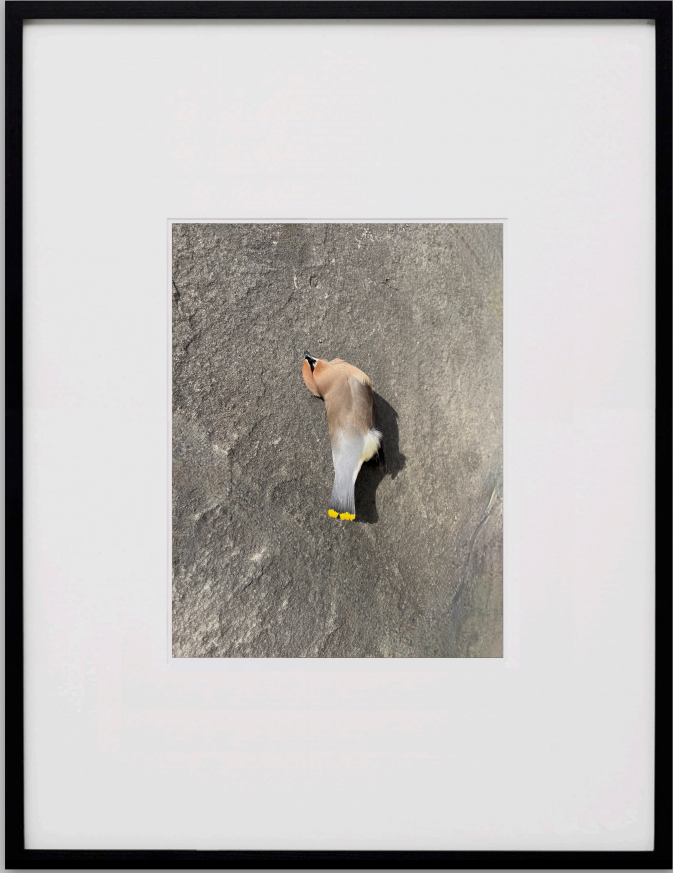

David Estes received his BA in History from Cornell University and MFA in Sculpture from California College of the Arts. He has recently become interested in poetry and how it relates to making images.
